SIX ATLANTA FIREMEN DIE IN FIGHTING BLAZE

GREAT LAKES TOO WILL BE SCENE OF 'BOOZE BLOCKADE'

Twenty-one Boats Go To Sea To Watch Liquor Vessels

END OF RUM ROW NOW FORESEEN

Seaplanes Reported To Have Joined Hunt For Runners

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 6.—Through the censorship accompanying Uncle Sam's blockade of the rum fleet, there filtered today news of increases to the greatest dry armada ever in action, and came too hints that the Great Lakes, as well as the Atlantic, would be the scene of a blockade.

Twenty-one boats have gone from New York to watch the liquor fleet, boat for boat, on a 50 mile front, an hour's steaming distance from shore.

Twenty-five crafts from New England ports joined these from New York. Twelve more rum chasers are ready to depart for the zone of action from their Staten Island base.

Reports from Detroit say that a dry fleet of ten craft is expected to be ready by summer for action on the Great Lakes. Later, it will be supplemented by another fleet, construction of which has started.

Rum Row's finish is foreseen by R. S. Merrick, federal prohibition director for New York and northern New Jersey. Already the increased activities of the coast guard have out-done liquor importations by 90 per cent, he says.

Although government authorities would not discuss operations in the air against the rum fleet, seaplanes were reported co-operating with the coast guard blockade.

A dozen or more planes went to sea from the Narrows early today and one put out from Rockaway Point.

To replace 12 boats ready to depart for the rum zone from their Staten Island base, 21 craft have been lined up as reinforcements.

The cutter Mojave is acting as flagship. A new wireless code has been devised for communication among the rum chasers and it is reported that the government is experimenting with a radio device, by which ships on patrol can be traced from shore stations.

Body of Woman Found In Woods

(Associated Press)
ALEXANDRIA, La., May 6.—The sheriff's office here was notified today that the body of a well dressed woman, with a bullet wound through the head, had been discovered in the woods near Long Leaf, in this parish. Coroner Marvin Chappell said the woman, who appeared to be young, had been dead for several months and that the bullet had entered the forehead and passed through the head. The body was found by Dr. Welch, of Long Leaf, a member of the parish board, who notified the authorities. The coroner expressed the opinion that she had been killed and taken to the woods, where she was thrown out of an automobile. The spot where the body was found is a considerable distance from any houses.

Informers To Get A Share of Fines

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 6.—Citizens who inform the federal authorities of liquor smuggling activities, leading to conviction of bootleggers under the customs laws will receive 25 per cent of the fines imposed and of the money obtained through the sale of the seized boats, Edward Barnes, assistant solicitor to the collector of the port, announced today.

WAR TROPHIES ARE SUBSTANTIAL CUT IN BUDGET SEEN

Transportation Is Only Cost To People of The County

For only the cost of transportation, Morgan County now can obtain her quota of war trophies, which are being distributed by the government on a basis of number of soldiers furnished during the world conflict.

Morgan can obtain: 12 bayonets. Two cartridge cases. Seven helmets. Two machine guns. Five sabres. Three saw-tooth bayonets. Two cartridge cases for howitzer. One Uhlan lance. Twenty-five rifles. One minnie-werfer.

W. W. Rahm announced that the total cost of transporting these trophies to the county would amount only to $39.75 and he expressed the hope that some local organization would undertake to bring them here and place them on permanent exhibition.

The Alabama board handling the trophies, writes: "Do you want the allotment of trophies offered your county? If you do send a check for the amount shown on the attached sheet to George W. Ellis, Treasurer, World War Trophy Fund, State Capitol, Montgomery, Alabama."

"We hope that you will accept your allotment, and act promptly in sending us a check since these trophies were collected and shipped from the European Battle fields to this country at a great expense to the federal government, in response to the request of the people that captured war trophies be made available for distribution to communities throughout the country."

"It is our plan to send a representative to the Raritan Arsenal in New Jersey for the purpose of selecting the trophies to be shipped to this state. This assures you of getting articles that are as good as the best available."

"We are mailing a copy of this letter to each Probate Judge, Sheriff and Superintendent of Education, President of your board of revenue, state senators and representatives. In addition to these county officials the president of each Chamber of Commerce, and similar organizations within your county. The president of each civic organization such as Rotarians, Pilot Clubs, etc., will receive a copy along with the Commander of Each American Legion Post within your county, and finally each newspaper within your county will give publicity to this movement."

"It is suggested that the Probate Judge the county superintendent of Education and the Commander of the Local Post of the American Legion, provide there is one in the county seat otherwise a citizen selected by the other two members of the board, immediately organize as a body for the purpose of taking up with various in-

Director Lord Due To Reach Washington On Saturday

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 6.—President Coolidge's drive for economy in federal expenditures will result in another substantial cut in the annual budget. He hopes the reduction will be as great as $300,000,000, making total estimates to be submitted to the new congress around $3,000,000,000.

Presidential budget estimates for the year beginning next June 30 are for $3,267,000,000, exclusive of the postoffice department, but including public debt requirements. These appropriations already have been made. Budget Director Lord is returning to Washington Saturday, after a month's tour, in which he carried the president's economy program in speeches direct to thousands of taxpayers. Upon his return, he will begin the drafting of the next budget in conference with the president.

Pr eliminary estimates already have been turned over to the budget by several governmental branches, although final estimates are not due until September.

The treasury soon can supply the budget with additional figures as to the probable surplus for the current fiscal year, a surplus that now promises to be around $100,000,000. It, likewise, will be in a position to forecast more definite the receipts that may be counted on from taxes in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The treasury already counts on a cut of about $60,000,000 in expenditures through additional retirement of war bonds.

The question of tax reduction is connected with the surplus. Unofficial estimates at the treasury now indicate that the total volume of tax receipts may be cut by 12 per cent. The method will be determined by congress, but Secretary Mellon has recommended reduction of sur-taxes and elimination, or material reduction, in the rates on estate taxes.

37TH STILL TAKEN SINCE CHRISTMAS NEAR 'FOX CREEK'

Officers Return From Another Raid On Moonshiners

CAR CAPTURED ON WAY HOME

Automobile Taken Into Custody Along With The Driver

Another still was captured yesterday in the Fox Creek section, officers announced today on their return from a raiding expedition. It marked the thirty-seventh still taken in the same area since Christmas, they said, and ran the number of illicit outfits captured in the past two weeks into the teens.

Included in the raiding party were Federal Prohibition Officer V. S. Root, George Jennings and I. G. Brown.

The still taken yesterday was of 160 gallons capacity and was of copper. Together with the still four barrels of beer were seized.

On their return here, officers reported they captured the driver of an automobile together with about a gallon and a half of prohibited liquors. The driver was placed under bond, they said, and the car seized.

The Fox Creek section, about nine miles northeast of here, is near the Morgan-Lawrence boundary line and officers complain that it has given them considerable trouble. The finding of the 37th still there in less than five months indicates that they are determined that the production of intoxicants there shall cease.

BRIDGE BONDS MAY BE SOLD LOCALLY

Interest Is Shown By Local Buyers For The Bonds

The sale of the $100,000 bridge bond issue to local citizens is not improbable according to information that was learned today from authoritative source. Many inquiries have been made by outside people who are interested in buying the bonds of the cities.

H. H. Houk, of the state highway department bridge division engineers was in the cities today after a trip to Chattanooga at which time, matters pertaining to the construction of the bridge at this point, were discussed. Mr. Houk is understood to have conferred with the district engineer and is reported to have declared that the highway department is preparing all plans for the building of the bridge beginning July 1.

Affairs in the cities regarding the sale of the bonds are likewise moving smoothly with the possibility that the highway department will be allowed to begin the work on the scheduled date.

It was stated that there will be no difficulty in selling the bonds of both cities.

GORDON CAMPBELL GUILTY SAYS JURY

Oil Man Sentenced To Two Years In Pen By U. S. Court

(Associated Press)
GREAT FALLS, Montana, May 6.—Gordon Campbell discoverer of the Kevin-Sunburst oil field and the man who employed Senator Burton K. Wheeler at $10,000 a year, as his attorney, following Wheeler's election to the senate in 1923, today was found guilty in the federal district court by a jury on charges of fraudulent oil promotion and using the mails to defraud.

The jury was out 20 hours and returned a sealed verdict last night. The verdict was read before Judge George M. Bourquin this morning.

Campbell is under another indictment in the District of Columbia with Senator Wheeler and E. S. Booth, former solicitor of the interior department, charged with conspiracy to procure federal lands by fraud.

The oil operator was sentenced at once by the judge to two years in the federal penitentiary and was fined $1,000.

Campbell was indicted April 8, 1924 by a grand jury here, the same grand jury that indicted Senator Wheeler, on a charge of using the mails to defraud. The indictment was brought in connection with his promotion of the Gordon Campbell-Kevin syndicate number two.

The government charged that Campbell falsely advertised the value of oil lands contained in the syndicate's holdings and that he misappropriated the syndicate's capital in paying for advertising and promotion.

FLOOR COLLAPSES BURYING FIREMEN BENEATH COTTON

ALL EQUIPMENT SENT TO SCENE

Necessary To Dig For Hours In Debris To Get To Injured

(Associated Press)
ATLANTA, Ga., May 6.—Six city firemen were killed and four injured early today when the upper floor of a building in which they were fighting a fire collapsed, the men being buried beneath bales of cotton that had been stored on the second floor.

The building, a two story brick structure, was used for storing cotton. The firemen were fighting the blaze from the ground floor, when the roof and upper floors fell in, sending them down beneath a weight of cotton bales.

Captain C. O. Bone and Lieutenant R. L. Dennard were among those killed. Four other firemen, F. F. Wilson, L. M. Smith, E. S. Konkle, and C. C. King were dead when their bodies were taken from the ruins.

Assistant Fire Chiefs Joe Anderson and R. H. Presley were injured, the former receiving a dislocated shoulder and the latter a wrenched back. Fireman W. T. Holt and Berry Johnson also were suffering from injuries when rescued from the debris.

The fire was confined to the one building.

When the upper floors collapsed, calls were sent out for help. The entire city fighting equipment soon was on the scene and relief efforts placed on an organized basis. Policemen kept crowds at a distance while the blaze was brought under control.

It was necessary to dig among the debris to get the dead and injured and it was sometime after the fire was out, before all of the missing firemen were accounted for.

About 150 bales of cotton were stored in the building.

Municipal Tax Payments Good

The payment of the delinquent municipal and school taxes were exceptionally good this year according to City Clerk Henry Hartung. Mr. Hartung stated that the city bought in only 12 parcels of property out of more than 150 delinquencies.

Mr. Hartung said that the delinquency list on sewer and street assessment would be published in a few days, possibly the latter part of this week.

People Anxious On Bridge Issue

Declaring that interest is very intense on the position of the city of Albany with regard to the sale of the bridge bonds, voted by the people a month ago, City Clerk Hartung said today that many calls have been answered at the city hall relative to the next move of the city. The city officials said that he hoped he would be able to give information within the next few days.

YOUR HEALTH

How Woman's Dress Has Improved Her Physique

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I READ about a new book, called "How to Tell the Fashions from the Follies." The author deals with a lot of things of interest chiefly to women. She rejoices over the figure of modern woman, saying, according to the reviewer:

"The modern figure permits women to breathe freely and at the same time it is admitted that the too masculine type of womanhood as attired for sports is not so winning a personality as the dainty, timid creature of past generations. Still, the price of health must be paid in some way, and the athletic girl of 1925 is physically nearly 100 per cent a finer specimen, than was the poor victim of tight lacing, and layers of clothes, in the days that are now happily past."

Who can doubt that modern girls are better off than their grandmothers? Certainly I do not.

The ancient graveyards are filled with the mortal remains of young women dead long before their time, the victims of a manner of life conducive to early demise. As a result of this statement I will get a hundred letters from indignant friends, pointing out that their great-grandmother lived to be ninety-eight. I know very well that an occasional woman lived to the century mark, but the average woman died today, and the average woman died many years younger than the average woman of the past.

Of course, not all this improvement can be attributed to the manner of dress. Much of it can be traced to the general extension of the span of life from better hygienic conditions. But the out-of-door living, the greater waist measurement, the freedom of limb and breath by reason of simplified dress—all these have contributed to the increasing improvement in the expectation of life. More and more women are becoming emancipated and there is certain to be a better race because of the good sense of modern women.

Of course, freedom of the sex has its disadvantages. I trust there may not grow up physical evils as a result of the greater freedom. Woman's body will stand everything a man's body endures. Her nervous system is more delicate and more sensitive. Habits and practices which seem rarely to impair his vigor may be decidedly damaging to a woman. I am confident, however, that the good sense which has made modern woman throw off the shackles of old-time dress will keep her safe and sane in dealing with the problems natural to her freedom.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Incubated, mentally, by shock, as a result of experiences during the World War, Renshaw makes a proposition to David Campbell, wealthy, elderly man of letters, that for a year he assume responsibility for him (Renshaw)—practically "buy" him. Doctor Stanley, "life-long" friend of Campbell's, indorses the proposition, which Campbell, with some natural misgivings, accepts. The arrangement is that the young man becomes an inmate of the Campbell household, with the nominal duty of secretary. Renshaw meets Verity, Campbell's granddaughter, and gets the impression that she does not like him. Jenks, the butler, Renshaw also feels, is distinctly hostile.

CHAPTER II.—At dinner, a guest, referred to as Madame Hvoeslef, is not present. Renshaw has a feeling that the servants are spying on him. Jenks warns him that there are "queer things" going on in the house. That night he is disturbed by the appearance on the wall of his room of a small blue circle of light. Mysterious noises in the corridor outside his door cause him to investigate, but he discovers nothing unusual.

CHAPTER III.—Campbell tells Renshaw that the household is in some respects "unusual," but makes light of his story of the mysterious sounds. Renshaw meets Madame Hvoeslef, a foreigner, with an air of mystery.

CHAPTER IV.—Madame Hvoeslef asks Renshaw to go to New York, a short journey, on a mission for her next day. During the night the blue circle again appears and the mysterious noises are resumed. Arising to investigate, Renshaw discovers he is locked in. He hears the sound of a heavy body dragging itself up to the transom over the door. Then a hand appears, apparently seeking to open the transom. Renshaw hears the sound of a heavy body crawling away.

CHAPTER V.—Remembering Jenks' warning, Renshaw tells the butler of the mysterious noises, but gets no satisfaction. Madame Hvoeslef gives him a handbag, declaring its contents are priceless, which he is to deliver to Mr. Atkins in New York. After dressing, Renshaw again finds his door locked, but it is promptly opened by Jenks. Renshaw delivers the bag. Hart, Campbell's chauffeur, who drove him to town, tells him Verity and Madame Hvoeslef are at the Waldorf. Remembering his locked door, that morning Renshaw is vaguely impressed about the handbag, and calls up Atkins. He learns that the bag he delivered contained only blank paper.

CHAPTER VI.—Meeting the ladies at the Waldorf Renshaw learns that Madame Hvoeslef's property is safe, the bag he delivered being a duplicate, for which no explanation can be made. Hart gets permission to stay in town that night, promising a duplicate chauffeur. On the way home Renshaw sends back the substitute, taking the wheel himself.

CHAPTER VII.—Despite her indifference Renshaw feels himself becoming deeply interested in Verity. During the night he is awakened by the girl, who tells him her grandfather has had an accident and is unconscious. They get the old man to bed. Restored to consciousness he with difficulty conveys to Renshaw a message, "Watch! Take charge."

CHAPTER VIII.—Verity is annoyed at her grandfather placing Renshaw in charge, but they reach an amicable understanding. Verity being impressed by Renshaw's masterful handling of the situation.

gone off already to get into her uniform. Go to bed, my child. I'll see you at breakfast. You too, Renshaw. Clear out! Your work's done for the night. Sleep late if you can."

He gave the young man's shoulder a friendly little push, shot a straight look into his eyes, and nodded complacently, as if the glance had confirmed an earlier impression.

"Go to bed," he repeated. "Jenks says you've both been on the watch ever since it happened. It's our turn now."

"He listened with interest to Renshaw's report of the patient's flicker of consciousness. He was in excellent spirits, evidently greatly relieved to discover that his old friend had what he called "a d-d good fighting chance."

"He'll fight, too," he chuckled to Morris, a little later. "He's made up his mind to outlive me. That will help him."

Renshaw escorted Verity to the door of her room. There, to his surprise, she put her hand in his. At the touch of the small fingers his self-consciousness returned. He held the hand vaguely a moment, as if he did not know quite what to do with it, then gently gave it back to her.

"Good-night," he said. "Sleep well. I'm almost sure there's nothing to worry about now."

She nodded. "I know," she said. "Good-night. And thank you again. I'm sorry I was so horrid."

He shook his head. "You were not horrid," he protested.

She entered her room and closed the door, but she did not immediately lose the sense of his presence. They had been together for hours, and an incredible thing had happened. Notwithstanding her dislike for him, her lack of faith in him, her half scorn of him, she knew that throughout that time she had depended on him. She had, in a way, leaned on him—on something in him which, in those hours at least, had seemed like strength. The knowledge both puzzled and embarrassed her. She should have been equal to the emergency. For, after all, he had actually done nothing except carry her grandfather to his bed. He had done that well and easily. He had been a stunning figure in his soft, rich dressing gown.

Chapter IX

Renshaw Takes Charge.

Despite Stanley's advice and the dawn that peered at him as he went to bed, Renshaw was up at seven the next morning. He had not slept well.

He had tried to sleep, knowing that the coming day might be a strenuous one. But his thoughts whirled like leaves in an autumn blast. Though connected mental effort was impossible, he could not cease thinking. In the fitful naps to which his exhaustion finally succumbed, his dreams were as unrefreshing as his thoughts. He was wandering through dark labyrinths. He was laboriously ascending desolate mountain paths. He was lost and confused in crowds. And never once did he have a definite objective. That realization, when he took it in upon awakening, disturbed him most of all. Not even his subconscious processes, he told himself, were yet normal.

He felt better after a cold plunge and when he entered the dining room he showed no outward effects of the strain of the night. Both Jenks and James were in the room, standing by the sideboard and talking in low tones. Renshaw had detoured to the long wing on his way down stairs, and had tapped at the door to ask news of the patient, receding from the nurse's stooped report of the average sick room: the patient was "resting comfortably."

He returned the respectful greetings of the two servants, and approached with zest the adventure of examining the hot dishes on the sideboard. While he was helping himself to omelet and bacon, the two physicians hustled into the dining room. They were obviously in exuberant spirits. Morris, indeed, wore the uplifted look of a modest man honored beyond his deserts, and Stanley was vain enough to be pleased as well as mildly amused by the awe with which his country colleague regarded him. Both greeted the secretary with cordiality, into which Stanley now infused something of the personal interest due to a protégé. They filled their plates like hungry schoolboys.

"Campbell's going to be all right," Stanley predicted, in response to Renshaw's first question, as he returned to the table and sat down. "Can't kill that old boy. He's determined to sing hymns at my funeral. By the way, it was only for a few seconds that he recovered consciousness, think you said?"

"Yes, just about that," Renshaw answered. "He seemed very anxious to say something, and finally he brought it out."

"Just what was it, again?"

"He instructed me in three words to take charge here."

Renshaw was glad to have this poorly developed, and especially in the presence of the two servants. That the might be no mistake about the matter, he clinched his case by adding:

A DAILY PRAYER—Help us to realize that as we go forward to the light of better days, that shadows are cast only behind us.

England has had a long pull to get back to the gold standard and her perseverance can be an example for other nations who find so much difficulty in domestic affairs.

The world is just as bad as we make it. If we see things in a dark light then they are sure to appear dark to us. Do not allow your soured disposition to overshadow another fellow who is looking for happiness on this orb, he may not enjoy the cloudiness.

Now is the time for all good farmers to come to the aid of the furrows. With the late April and early May cold wave apparently out of the way, Morgan farmers are wasting no time in sowing the seed that will reap golden benefit in the near fall.

The Pan-American is almost perfection and yet in ten years it is likely that we will realize that the Pan decorations and comforts are likened to the ease in riding a wheelbarrow, the world goes so fast. It's join in the race or get run over.

Some folks have been blazing the trail because the Daily publishes crime news without giving the name of the offender. Even if the Daily should be in the clear in giving names it would not be long before everyone who appeared in police courts and criminal records would be wearing the far famed arithmetical term, "John Doe."

ON THE BUILDING OF THE MOULTON ROAD AND THE ADDITIONAL $50,000 FOR BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

The announcement carried in the issue of Monday of the Daily that the road between these cities and Moulton, the Lawrence county capital, is to be built permanently and that the state highway commission regarded the building of a bridge at this point as one of the most vital projects in the linking of the state highway chain and thought it best to appropriate probably $50,000 more to the expenditure for construction, comes to the people of the cities as a story of great worth, a sort of balm for the pains of years past when it seemed that no matter how much was done that nothing could be accomplished.

The building of the Moulton road will mean the opening up of a trade territory and a vast store of friendly relationship to the west. The building of the concrete structure across the Tennessee river will mean one of the greatest advancements in this section in years. The latter project when complete will open the state to other states, the northern section to Albany-Decatur and Alabama roads to the entire north and east.

We are particularly pleased with these two decisions on the part of the commission although the matter of the building of a bridge was determined by the people of these cities to a great extent. We believe that they have the interests of the northern section of the state as close to their hearts as the interests of any other section in the state.

With the outside interests in the state working for the cities in such splendid steps toward achievement there is little need to fear for what the future holds in industrial and agricultural expansion, friendly relationship over the valley section and an almost immediate touch of the cities in the northern district with one another. It looks very much as if Albany and Decatur are facing a new era, prosperity and growth is certain to follow in the path of constructiveness.

BRANDON'S ADMINISTRATION IS IN HEALTHY FINANCIAL CONDITION

Governor W. W. Brandon has been criticised in many ways during his administration for various acts purported to have issued out of the governor's office for instance, the pardoning of a great number of convicts during his term and the criticism may be just in some quarters, but there is little to be said regarding the financial condition of the state at this time. Governor Brandon has certainly filled to bill along the line of making the receipts show at a figure above the disbursements. During the first seven months of the present fiscal year, October 1st, 1924, to April 30, 1925, the state treasurer's report shows receipts of $20,774,307.87 with disbursements of $19,551,550.86. The following is his report of state treasurer George W. Ellis:

"Three mill school tax $2,591,885.88; one mill soldiers' tax $895,356.44; gasoline excise tax $1,091,271.01; convict department $1,556,652.01. Highway department: Motor vehicle license $1,789,076.68; miscellaneous collections, $3,097.39; sale of highway bonds $3,300,000; federal aid on road work $1,648,329.85; miscellaneous aid on road work $177,953.27; transferred to highway sinking fund $600,000. Total highway department $7,518,457.19; sale of harbor improvement bonds, premium and interest $1,16,531.25; all other sources $6,004,153.49. Total receipts $20,774,307.87.

"Following is the detailed statement of disbursements for the seven months: Previous year warrants paid during current year $860,086.92; school purposes: County public schools $3,452,312.14; state normal schools, $209,100; county high schools $182,300; secondary agricultural schools $61,875; bonus school fund $200,000; State University, Alabama Polytechnic Institute and College for Women $454,811.72; erection and repair rural schools $34,180.40; educational revolving fund $91,892.29.

"Vocational education $94,918.29; industrial rehabilitation $175,918.29; total school purposes $4,707,013; Eleemosynary institutions $722,370.82; pensions to Confederate soldiers and widows $1,189,529.50. Highway department, expenses, salaries, maintenance and interest $1,757,202.40; bond fund—road work $4,554,620.04; sinking fund—bonds retired $595,028.75; total highway department $6,906,451.25; state docks commission (harbor improvement bonds) $1,129,281.25; convict department $1,253,968.93; gasoline excise tax paid to counties $934,914.65; state health department $141,065.14; temporary loan—repaid $300,000; interest on state bonded debts $169,860; all other purposes $1,246,608.65. Total disbursements $19,551,550.86."

Such a report of the condition of the state deserves a bit of praise for the governor and the men who have worked with him. If Governor Brandon has been too lenient in some cases it has been out of the goodness of his heart and according to the dictates of his conscience.

AND NOW FOR THE PARTING GREETING ON THE SUBJECT OF MR. ROGERS AND HIS DINNER

John A. Rogers has had his banquet, the legislators attended in great numbers, Associated Press members were not barred, Governor Brandon was asked to call the legislature in July and plans for the future building of highways in this grand old state of ours were discussed. Can you see any harm in that sort of amusement. Would you term that as calling the legislature into executive session without authority. Would you accuse a man of trying to build poor roads in the state, just because he attempted to gain some other viewpoint on the subject?

It seems to the writer that the newspapers and their representatives who were blacklisted and not allowed to attend the banquet have been very unfair in the dealings with Mr. Rogers. They have had no ground to stand upon from the first and why they have attempted to undermine the work of the highway commission is beyond the comprehension of the people in the northern section of the state.

One of the papers opposed to Mr. Rogers published an article Tuesday morning to the effect that the Rogers banquet was not a success, people refused to attend, Associated Press representatives were barred and in publishing such news the editors of the paper realized that the place to take a controversy was to the editorial columns and not in the news columns where people expect the happenings of the day and not the opinions of people who were unable to give all the facts in the case because they were not present. Mr. Rogers did not bar members of the Associated Press, he asked them to attend, some of them. He made no effort to keep the story from papers whom he knew would give the news to the public from a non-partisan standpoint.

Furthermore, the banquet was a success, a great success. Legislators gathered along with many representative business and professional men over the state and discussed the next best step for the highway commission to take with regard to the building of more highways in the state and the maintenance of those that we now have. Mr. Rogers presented his case to the attendants at the banquet. There was no blinding, no shielding, nor any attempt to get away from the truth of the situation of the highway commission at the present time. He laid his hand on top of the table and asked those gathered with him what was best to be done. The answer will be given possibly in July when it is expected that Governor Brandon will call the legislature into special session.

The legislators may not see fit to go to the people with an issue of $75,000,000 at this time. They may believe that the strain will be too heavy at this time, but it is almost assured that the highway commission will be given something to work with for the state of Alabama is demanding roads and the people don't expect their demands to be answered ten years from now. They want service on the road problem at once. The legislature will most likely find some answer to the problem.

Some of the state papers have seemingly been unfair in this effort to stop the highway department in a move that the greater part of the state believes to be progressive. What motive is behind it is not known. If it is a matter of removing Mr. Rogers from his position, an effort to discredit him with the people, it is certainly of little note for Mr. Rogers has declared himself in favor of the gigantic bond issue whether he is in office at the time the funds are being paid out over the state in road building or whether the reins of the highway department have been turned over to some one else. We believe that Mr. Rogers is sincere in his effort, we believe that he is looking at the matter from the viewpoint of what the commission can do with $75,000,000, the progressive steps in permanent road building that can be accomplished with the proper judgment and use of the sum should it be voted by the people.

If voting $75,000,000 for the building of highways bridges and the maintenance of highways is the answer to the problem now confronting the state then we are of the opinion that it is the best step to take. The people are the ones who will ultimately pay for the roads, they want the roads and they want them at once. Get busy and see how the pulse of the people is on the matter and how the funds are to be spent until the funds are voted.

Chiropractic For The Kidneys

The only possible way that your diseased condition may be replaced by a condition of health is to permit the free passage of functional energy from the brain to the kidneys thus allowing the kidneys to receive the energy upon which they are solely dependent for their normal work. When this has been accomplished your disease cannot longer exist. It is as impossible for disease to be present in the human body with the spine in perfect alignment as it is for darkness to express itself in the light of the shining sun—the two absolutely cannot exist.

The fact that you are a sufferer with kidney trouble is positive evidence that something is wrong with the supply of functional energy going to the kidneys. A spinal analysis will enable us to tell you what you may expect from adjustments.

STORY OF PILGRIM'S PROGRESS FOUND IN TRANSLATION OF PSALMS

SEATTLE.—An Old Testament Pilgrim's Progress has been found in four of the psalms by Dr. Herbert H. Gowen, professor of Oriental languages and literature at the University of Washington.

Dr. Gowen's translation differs from the standard one. He says he has preserved as nearly as possible the original meter of the Old Testament songs and has diligently connected the four chants into a continuous story of the pilgrims' return to the Promised Land.

"The conception behind the four psalms, which begin with the 120th, was the return of the Jewish exiles from Babylonian captivity," Dr. Gowen said. "The joy of the returning captives as they noticed the hills of their native land and the towers of Jerusalem is reflected in the songs."

SHOWER FOR MRS. LEE

Among the delightful social affairs of Tuesday was the linen shower that Mrs. E. T. Branum gave complimenting Mrs. T. O. Lee who will leave soon for Covington, Ky., to join Mr. Lee and make their future home there. Mrs. Branum's home was unusually attractive with tall baskets and bowls of roses.

All of the guests were relatives and close friends of the honor guest and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. The party was marred only by the regret that Mrs. Lee was leaving. Mrs. Henry Jones gave several instrumental solos after which a basket filled with beautiful linens was presented to Mrs. Lee. Mrs. Branum was assisted in serving a delicious ice course by Mrs. F. M. Burks.

Those included in this affair were Mrs. E. M. Lee, Mrs. W. H. Lee, Mrs. A. C. Lee, Mrs. L. W. Lee, Mrs. Ernest Lee, Mrs. J. W. Pettie, Mrs. Henry Jones, Mrs. F. M. Burks, Mrs. Walter Dunnavent, Mrs. Eva Leeman, Mrs. H. McLane the honoree and hostess.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 I am a married woman and have been married fifteen years. My husband and I do not get along together at all. He is always finding fault with me and he tells me he doesn't love me. I don't know if he means it or not. Will you please advise me what to do?
BROWN-EYED SALLY.

BROWN-EYED SALLY: You must learn to put up with your husband's cross moods, my dear. Remember that marriage has its trials as well as its joys, and learn to take both in good grace. If you are kind and gentle in your manner toward your husband, he cannot but appreciate it. But by no means should you even think of giving up your home on account of occasional quarrels. Give your husband a chance to mend his ways and you will be gratified at the result.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
 I am quite popular with both the boys and the girls of my community. They are always friendly with me and I always enjoy myself with them. There is one thing that I do not understand: Whenever there is a dance or a party the boys do not ask me to go with them. There are many places that I would like to go, but I cannot go by myself.

FRATERNITY WOULD RAISE BUSINESS SCHOOL STANDARD

MINNEAPOLIS.—Methods of promoting a professional interest in the study of business and business systems in an effort to place schools of commerce on the same professional level as schools of law and medium will be discussed at the annual convention of the Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity here June 19-22.

Means also will be discussed by which the organization can become more closely affiliated with the schools of commerce throughout the United States. It is proposed that banquets and meetings be held at which prominent business men would address the fraternity—in which the student becomes acquainted with business and business methods before he gets through college.

Alpha Kappa Psi, the first professional commerce fraternity, was founded at New York University in 1905 by ten students registered in the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance. Its membership now includes dozens of prominent deans of universities, noted educators, bankers and accountants.

The twentieth anniversary of the founding of the order will be observed at the convention and more than 150 delegates and officers will be in Minneapolis representing the fraternity's 45 chapters.

Louis Ferdinand, who is 17 years of age, went to work secretly. A few months later a Spanish diplomat was invited to tea and the young prince surprised his family by conversing fluently in Spanish.

RESEARCH WORKERS PREDICT MAN WILL LIVE FOR 150 YEARS

LONDON—That the span of life can be extended to 150 years at the cost of a sixpence a head, is the argument of Sir Ronald Ross, the English scientist whose researches have led to cures for malaria and sleeping sickness. Sir Ronald claims that a sixpence from the pocket of every Englishman spent in scientific research, would result in new medical knowledge that would keep germs and old age away from at least 150 years.

The scientist thinks that the allotted span of three score years and ten should find man in the prime of life, instead of edging his pedal extremities toward the grave. We live curtailed lives, he says, because we are the prey of countless germs. Conquer the germs and man can easily reach the age of 150 and maybe longer.

"Eighty years ago," said Sir Ronald in a lecture, "the average life of a London man was about 84 years, 7 months and of a woman 38 years 4 months. Today it is 53 years 9 months and 59 years. Thus medical science in 80 years has given us 20 years more of life."

This start on cheating eternity has just begun, the speaker continued. Nowadays the equivalent of one penny a head is being spent in Britain for research and he asserted that the spending of a sixpence a head would make the monkey gland useless.

A scientist of the pasteur Institute in Paris has predicted that in 100 years from now the average man will live to be 150 years old. Mechanic

CONDITIONS OF NAVAL AVIATORS TESTED BY USE OF PSYCHOLOGY

SAN PEDRO—Flight psychoanalysis, practiced to prevent aerial accidents, rather than mend broken bones or patch up luckless pilots and observers after a crash if they survive, has increased the efficiency of the United States naval aviators to a large degree, statistics aboard the U. S. S. Aroostook naval aircraft tender, indicate.

Medical officers aboard the tender declare that 9 per cent of aerial accidents during the World War, were due to physical and psychological defects of the flying personnel. Acting upon this percentage compiled from fatalities, the medical staff of the Aroostook has established a careful examination, scientific in every detail over the 150 pilots and observers, who take-off in heavy bombers or light scout planes from the long, flat deck of the tender.

The flight surgeons observe the fliers each time before a flight is begun.

"I can tell by talking with a pilot in the morning," declared Dr. Robert G. Davis senior flight surgeon, "whether he is able to go aloft that day. If his psychological condition seems shaky he has to stay aboard."

"We will not permit a man to fly who has domestic difficulties, or if his family objects to his going aloft. At the critical moment a pilot's mind may wander to what his wife said at breakfast and he ends in a fatal crash."

When an ensign is assigned to the Aroostook for flight duty, he first must be in 100 per cent physical condition; then he is subjected to a most searching psychological examination. Dr. Davis explained. Visual balance, muscle balance and basis of depth perception form the basis of the applicant's examination trial before he is awarded wings.

Then there is the low pressure chamber to climax the examination. The applicant is placed in the chamber and subjected to atmospheric changes that he would encounter above the clouds.

The air in the chamber is rarified until the aspirant to wings is near collapse. A chart then shows exactly what altitude the man could operate in most effectively.

Many men, Dr. Davis said, are excellent fliers below 12,000 feet, while others are competent at 20,000 feet. Thus one pilot may be capable in a bombing squadron while another may be at his greatest efficiency in a fighting or scouting squadron.

The fleet's flight surgeon has absolute control over all pilots in the aircraft squadrons. He declares them off duty if he thinks their physical condition demands. Constant flying, the surgeons say, produces a condition of staleness requiring frequent rests. Without these short vacations breaks would occur in the efficiency and men and machines would be lost.

The flier's quarters aboard the Aroostook are kept well ventilated. The food is carefully prepared and served; even as the college athlete's training table is spread, so it is with the navy's athletes of the air.

Sum up their ceaseless efforts for the pilot's welfare, the flight surgeon says "It is easier to build planes than to keep men alive."

Voice of People

Albany, Ala., May 6, 1925.
Mr. B. C. Shelton, Managing Editor,
Albany-Decatur Daily,
City.

My Dear Sir:

I want to express my appreciation of your policy of giving so much valuable space in "our" paper to church news. You deserve the hearty commendation of all Christians, regardless of denominational lines, because the columns of your paper have been literally filled with reports of revivals, and "write-ups" of the evangelists who have visited our Cities.

And I want to commend you, too, for the regular "Churches Column" that you carry free of charge every week for the churches. It is worthwhile, and it pays the pastors to use it. Then the half page "Church map" that has become a regular feature of each Saturday's issue is one of the best mediums of church publicity that I know of. On several occasions it has been the means to help us draw an over-flow crowd at South Side.

In the opinion of this humble scribe you are having a worthy part in the upbuilding of the religious, moral and commercial life of the Twin Cities.

Yours sincerely,
E. FLOYD OLIVE,
Pastor, South Side Baptist Church.

FOR WORKING PEOPLE

The best of workers get out of sorts when the liver fails to act. They feel languid, half-sick, "blue" and discouraged and think they are getting lazy. Neglect of these symptoms might result in a sick spell, therefore the sensible course is to take a dose or two of Herbine. It is just the medicine needed to purify the system and restore the vim and ambition of health. Price 60c. Sold by At all good druggists

SPORTS

Power People Grab Initial Decision As City League Series Opens; Play Thursday

The Alabama Power company, got away to a full game lead in the city league series Tuesday afternoon when they took an easy affair from the Louisville & Nashville shopmen. The final stood 10-4, the game being played in seven innings by agreement.

The Power gang started things off in the first after two were down. Webb singled, Banks walked, Lee was safe on an error, Webb counting. Banks and Lee scored when Conley singled. Singleton went safe on an error but Bowen whiffed. The Shopmen failed to count in their half of the first. The Power company scored in the second, again starting things after two were out. Watson and Webb were safe on errors. Banks went all the way to third while the Shopmen were throwing the ball around. Webb and Watson counting.

The Shopmen came back in the second and began hitting Bloodworth. Rolfe tripled. Odom was out at first. Mann hit safely and Rolfe counted. Mann counted on Myers safety. The Shopmen got another in the third when Jernigan and Slaton hit safely.

The Powermen scored another trio in the fifth on a flock of errors and a single by Bloodworth and scored another pair in the sixth on hits by Banks, Lee and Conley. The Shopmen scored in the last half of the seventh on a hit and a hit batsman.

Bloodworth and Gallagher gave up nine hits for the afternoon three being of the extra base variety. Myers was stingy with his safeties but shaky support kept him in trouble all the way through. Myers let the Power people down with seven safe blows only one hit, a double by Lee, going for two bases. The Power folks played almost faultless baseball while the Shopmen allowed most of the runs chalked against them to trickle over the pan by way of the error route. The shop folks were given nine errors for the afternoon work, while the Power company had three.

Slaton, Baker and Thompson were the shining lights of the shop defense. Slaton handled Myers in mid-season form. Baker handled many hard chances at shortstop although he was given two errors for the afternoon. Thompson made a circus catch from Lee's bat in the second inning when he raced back in deep center and hauled the agate from the atmosphere. The blow would probably have gone for three or four bases had Thompson misjudged it.

There were no defensive stars for the Power company. The entire lineup played steadily behind Gallagher and Bloodworth.

The Consolidated Sunday School and the Decatur team play Thursday afternoon in the second game of the city league series this being the first appearance of the two teams this season. The game will be called at 4:15 at Malone Park.

BUSINESS MEN LOSE

Business Men still hold the lead in bowling tournament at the Y. M. C. A. in spite of a loss last night of three points to the Tigers.

This loss is attributed to bad breaks on the part of the Business Men players, Herman Troup being the only out with any kind of luck during the match. Troup increased his tourney average by two pins. All bowlers in the Tigers team increased their averages from one to two points.

Tonight the famous "Y" Dormitory will go up against the Machine Shop crowd. A good match is looked for. Scores for last night:

Sweden Shows Fondness

For American Bread

STOCKHOLM—White bread of American wheat flour is gaining in popularity in Sweden, according to official trade and crop statistics for 1924 now available. But at the same time Sweden's own grain producing capacity is rising, so that in a pinch the country could supply its entire need in breadstuffs.

While still being supplemented by wheat from the United States, Sweden's own wheat production has also risen during the same periods from 51 to 63 percent of the total domestic consumption, and yet the imports of wheat flour rose from 267,000,000 kilograms in 1923 to 286,300,000 in 1924, so that the population not only raises more wheat than formerly, but also imports more. At the same time it consumes less of the old-time dark rye bread which was once its principal staff of life.
